

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A liquid crystal display device includes an upper plate, a lower plate, and a liquid crystal. A sealant is formed along edges of the upper and lower plates to join the upper plate with the lower plate, and a protrusion separates the sealant from a picture displaying area at an inner portion of the upper and lower plates. The liquid crystal injected into the picture displaying area.

TOP SECRET - CENTER 60